

WHAT IS BLOCK PRINT?

Block Print is Writer's Block Ink's literary zine which was launched in summer 2025. Block Print meetings are free and open to all. They provide a space where youth can collaborate to develop and publish original writing and artwork around themes they choose. It creates space for honest expression, creative exploration, and community dialogue.

Block Print editors meet weekly online on Fridays from 3-5 PM, beginning May 22.

Previous issues of the zine are available on the WBI website.

SUMMER PROGRAMS 2026

BLOCK PRINT

WHO CAN PARTICIPATE?

We welcome creative, passionate, and active young adults 14 and up from the New London area.

Whether you're experienced or just getting started, you belong on The Block.

WHERE/WHEN DOES IT MEET?

365 Bank St, New London CT

June 15 - August 14

Monday - Friday 10:30 AM - 3:30 PM

WHAT DOES IT COST?

Tuition, alongside grant funding, makes it possible for us to run a high-quality, accessible program for all students. Each contribution helps us go beyond grant funding to both support this program and expand access for others.

The suggested contribution for the full 7-week session is $1,400 per student.

Flexible payment options available, including payment plans, sliding scale, and scholarships. No one is ever turned away for inability to pay. If cost is a concern please do not hesitate to reach out to us.

ABOUT THE BLOCK

Writer's Block Ink is a youth empowerment and social justice program aimed at empowering New London area youth to use the creative arts to address social issues and inspire change in their community. Our work is collaborative, trauma-informed, and rooted in the belief that young people deserve spaces to talk about difficult topics where their voices are respected and taken seriously.

This summer participants will come together to make Writer's Block Ink's first short film over the course of 7 weeks.

OUR PROGRAMS GIVE STUDENTS:

-  Youth-Led Community
-  Creative Support
